PREFACE.

The present work is a continuation down to the date of publication of the author's NEW YORK CITATIONS published in 1882, and the reader is referred to the preface of that work for an explanation of the general plan of the present one.

It is believed that the hope then entertained by the author that the work would be found useful by the profession has been realized, and it is gratifying that very few errors have been found in it.

The present supplement has been compiled under the great difficulties which must attend any work of this character undertaken by a lawyer in active practice.

Every effort has been used to make it complete down to the date of publication.

The appeals here given cover one more volume (102 N. Y. Reports) than the citations, because it was found possible to insert the appeals, but not the citations, in the volume of reports published while the present book was in press. Appeals appearing in the various Reporters since the last volume of the New York Reports have been given where possible.

As was said in the preface of the original work, ideal accuracy and completeness are impossible in a book of this character, but it is hoped that much care and labor have been successful in avoiding errors.

THEODORE CONNOLY.
